Registration of Hebridean Sheep

Historical Note

This ancient breed of sheep of Viking descent, originating from the Western Isles and Highlands of Scotland, survived to the mid Twentieth Century principally as parkland flocks on significant estates in Scotland and England. In 1974 the Rare Breeds Survival Trust recognised Hebridean sheep as a breed in danger of extinction and included the breed in their registration programme in the Combined Flock Book. From 1975 a standard numbering system was used for all breeds, with Hebridean sheep being given a serial number prefixed by the letter K. Under the Trust's care the breed grew steadily and this growth was accelerated by the formation of a Breeders' Group in 1987.

In 1994 the Breeders' Group was reconstituted to form The Hebridean Sheep Society which assumed responsibility for the pedigree register. During this transition year sheep could be registered either with the Society or with the Combined Flock Book. The Society's numbering system gives each animal a serial number followed by a two-digit suffix for the year of birth.

From 1995, The Hebridean Sheep Society is the sole registration authority for Hebridean sheep in the UK. This edition of the Flock Book contains all registrations made during 2002 until the close of the flock book on 31 October.

Validity of Data in the Flock Book

The data in each flock book is an accurate record of the registration database for the year, at the time of preparation. Inevitably, it will contain errors of two kinds.

The records in the database may contain inaccuracies which may then be notified to the Society by the breeders concerned, or by a flock inspector. The necessary amendments will be published in the next volume of The Black Book.

Occasionally a sheep may lose a registration tag and the animal has to re-numbered and re-tagged. These amendments are recorded in the registration database and on the animal's certificate.

Although the Society makes every effort to ensure that all published data is accurate and up to date, breeders should be aware that the only valid source of current data is the registration database maintained by the registration secretary. Various kinds of print-out are obtainable on request to the registration secretary.
